

Stiftung Bergwaldprojekt:

The Stiftung Bergwaldprojekt (Foundation for Mountain Forest Projects) maintains, cares and protects forests and cultural landscapes in mountain regions by arranging for voluntary assignments and encouraging public understanding and awareness for the forest's concerns.

Instead of debating about it, the fascinating ecosystem of the mountain forests should be experienced on-site. The participants of the voluntary assignments learn first-hand about the habitat «mountain forest», its challenges and chances.

Project weeks for schools: classes from 7th grade up construct – under supervision by experienced forestry specialists and assistance from their teachers – trails, protections and fences and tend the forest. This shows students the beauty, fascination and uniqueness of the mountain forests.

